Charity Fetes Coming Into Their New Season in Paris

This Year, However, They Will Find Little Money in French Pockets—American Colony Interested in Dances and Teas.

Special Correspondence to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
New York Herald Bureau, Paris, Nov. 25.

THE season for charity fetes is opening. Several have been announced during the last week, and the first weeks in December will be devoted almost entirely to benefit functions that will cause Parisians to leave the capital if they do not want to dig down into their pockets.

The "Acceuil Franco-Américain," which is settlement work for Paris, in which a number of Americans are interested, gives the first charity fete next week at the Union Interalliée, and is to be a musical and will prove of particular interest to music lovers, inasmuch as M. Pablo Casals, the eminent violinist, is to play for the last time before he sails for America. Mme. Taublieb (nee Julia Catlin), wife of Gen. Taublieb, the Senator from Alsace, has organized the matter for the benefit of her pet charity. A whole series of charity musicals, then follows, including concerts and the dances for the benefit of the Russian and numerous French charity committees, and the chances are that none of them will be a success. The truth is that Parisians have very little money to spend and less to give away.

Social activities have been particularly brilliant during the last week. There have been a few interesting dinner parties at the Union Interalliée, and the Ritz has had its usual party on Sunday and Thursday nights, and the dancing houses have been as popular as ever, but aside from that the week has been rather dull.

Prof. Charles Downer Hazen, the eminent historian and professor of modern European history in Columbia University, and Mrs. Hazen gave a dinner at the Union Interalliée last night for Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fitch of Milwaukee, who have been active in making the Fatherless Children of France a great success in the Middle West. Mrs. Fitch is now actively engaged in a comprehensive undertaking whose object is to make the noble home life of France familiar to Americans. She recommends for this purpose the opening of a large number of private schools of the Middle West, inasmuch as that is the section where a real knowledge of the French language and culture is most defective.

This proposal has commended itself so well to the French educational authorities that M. Leon Berard, Minister of Instruction, requested Mrs. Fitch to express her views before the Senatorial committee dealing with the affairs of his Ministry. This was a unique honor, inasmuch as Mrs. Fitch's address was the first ever given by an American woman before a committee of the French Senate, who she said for the American yesterday on the Aquitaine, carries a proud record of the fullest possible cooperation from the Senatorial committee, and it is believed that by next spring this idea will begin to take practical shape. It being recognized that some time will be required to select a sufficient number of French women to fill the posts, Mrs. Fitch plans to interest the State committee of the Fatherless Children of France in this important undertaking.

Many Tea Parties.
Thursday was the biggest day of the winter in the number of tea parties at the Union Interalliée. Mrs. Fitch, wife of the Marshal, was present with a party of friends. Mrs. L. M. Cuthbert had as her guests Mrs. Marshall Clyde, Mrs. Paul Fuller, Mrs. Samuel Nave and Mrs. William Littauer. Baron and Baroness de Foucaucourt had a big party, including Vicomte and Vicomtesse de Puchot, Mrs. and Miss Beebe and Capt. de Vallais. In another party were Mrs. Walter C. Fish, Miss Alice Lovering, Mrs. Gaston, Mrs. Windeler and Miss Blydenstair. Mrs. Frederic Attwood had as her guests Mrs. Eugene de la Roche and Mrs. John Bennett. Mr. Albert Blum had as his guests Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Huxor, Mrs. Edward Wentworth and Mrs. S. de Jonge.

Vicomtesse G. de Dampierre had as her guests Vicomtesse de Pettville and Vicomtesse H. de Dampierre. Miss Struve entertained Mrs. William L. Flanagan, Comtesse Cardell and Mr. William McDermott. Mrs. Laurence V. Benet entertained Mrs. Henry Munroe, Miss Isabelle Hardie, Mrs. Shearson and Mrs. Steinman. Mr. Gilbert Jones had as her guests Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Rous, Mrs. Petain, Mrs. Dery Arnold and Baroness de Gabe. Others present were Comtesse B. d'Avricourt, Comtesse and Miles, de St. Aubert, Mme. Desprez, Mrs. Henry Picard, Mrs. Valerie Bell, Mrs. J. C. Bullwinkle, Mrs. J. Bowles, Mrs. Francis G. Shaw, Mrs. Leggett, Mrs. Spaulding Degarmendia, Mrs. Griswold Gray and Mrs. Le Grand Benedict.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carter entertained in honor of Mr. and Mrs. George Meservy of Washington. Mrs. Edgar Carolan had as her guests Mrs. Zuccolli, Mrs. Draper, Mrs. Beatty. Others there were Mrs. de St. Paul, Miss Lila Ives, Mr. and Mrs. Berry Wall, Mr. Sidney B. Velt, Mrs. Laurens Morgan Hamilton, Mrs. Chase Caspary, Mrs. John Black, Mrs. Plunkett Morgan and Mr. Alexander Singer.

A new record was again made this week at the Sunday night dinner dance at the Ritz and rarely has there been a more cosmopolitan mixture. There were, no doubt, many pretty dresses, but dancers were so numerous in both ballrooms that there was not much room for any more than heads and shoulders, and with the present styles it would scarcely be fair to vouch for a frock being more than a head and shoulders. There were more than 500 dining, though there were no big dinner parties, groups of only four being most frequent. Lady Waterlow had as her guests the Duc and Duchesse de Vendôme and Prince de Genéviève d'Orléans. Field Marshal Lord French of Ypres had a party of six. Mrs. Herman Goldreich had a party of six. Miss Eliza Maxwell entertained a party of ten.

Rome's Quiet Fall Mood Is Displaced by Winter Activity

American Colony Grows as Season Opens—Bernhardt in Plays.

Special Correspondence to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

ROME, Nov. 25. THE Eternal City is still clinging to her leisurely autumnal mood, but within a short time the winter rush and gaiety will begin. The first rush and gaiety will begin. The chief hotels predict an active season, and the hotel tea-dance has already made its fall debut. November visitors enjoy the races in the Parioli grounds in the outskirts of the city, which are thronged every Sunday. The theater promises an unusually interesting season, dominated evidently by the clever plays of Pirandello, who is now the vogue. Bernhardt appears here to-day and to-morrow, and Eleonora Duse, who is now touring in the north of Italy, will give several performances during December.

Patrician Rome is pleased by the choice of Duck Gelasio Caetani as the new Ambassador to Washington. The Caetani family belongs to the Italian-American group which is the nucleus of Rome society during the winter. Don Gelasio's brother, Don Roffredo, and his wife, who was Miss Margaret Chapin of New York, live in Rome. Other brothers have married into the Colonna and Lovatelli families, always important in the Rome social world. The young Ambassador himself is a bachelor, and lives with his elder brother, the Duke of Sermoneta in the Palazzo Caetani.

Don Gelasio will be invited with Premier Mussolini to be guests of honor at a luncheon given on a few days by the American Press Association. Ambassador Richard Washburn Child will be present in his capacity as a member of the association. The lecture of Edgar Ansel Mowrer received informally this week in their home in Palazzo Gallizia. Mrs. Charles Henry Dennis and the Misses Mildred and Ruth Dennis of Chicago, who have been spending a month in Rome, and Mr. Henry Colt MacLean, commercial attaché of the embassy, and Mrs. MacLean were among the guests.

Mr. Charles Chillum, Jr., who has completed three years' work as fellow architect in the American Academy in Rome, sailed last Friday on the Conte Rosso from Naples. Mr. Chillum will remain several weeks in New York and then will go to Houston, where he will be assistant professor of architecture in Rice Institute. He will also practice in the firm of William Ward Watkins, Houston representative of Gram & Ferguson of Boston. Mr. Chillum has contributed much to the traditions of the architecture department of the Academy during his three years in Rome.

Recent arrivals at the Grand Hotel are Mr. Samuel J. Klein and Mr. B. Berthold of New York, Mr. Walter Paul McBride of Chicago, Mr. Mortimer B. Kelly, Mr. Joseph H. Davidson and Mrs. Emily Church of New York and Mrs. Susan Sprague Tribon of Boston.

Miss Elizabeth Brooks, a young American soprano, who is a pupil of William Carson of New York, has made her debut in the Civic Theater of Schio, in the province of Venezia, singing Madeline in "André Chénier." Miss Brooks will return to America for a short time, but expects to come back to Italy to continue her operatic experience.

The Quirinal Hotel announces the arrival of the following guests: Miss Alice Corrinne Shields, Mr. Walter C. Lotte and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Kennedy, Mr. James H. Turner of Paris and Alon of New York, and Mrs. J. V. McCarthy of Belmont, Mass.

Mr. Albert Higgins and Mr. Carl Schutzen of Boston, Mass., are guests at the Palazzo Hotel, where are also Mrs. Joseph Clark and Mr. Joseph Clark, Jr. of Philadelphia; Mrs. R. C. Rathbone, Miss Juliet Rathbone and Mrs. H. A. Sinclair of New York, and Miss Catherine Ladyard and Miss Henrietta E. Hagg of New York.

Americans Arrive.
Miss Louise Griswold of Ithaca, N. Y., sister of Mr. Ralph Griswold, fellow in landscape architecture in the American Academy, has arrived for a winter's stay.

Geese Replaced Turkeys on Berlin's Thanksgiving Menus

Ambassador and Mrs. Alanson B. Houghton Dispensed Holiday Cheer at Embassy—American Colony Preparing Usual Christmas Fete for German Orphans.

Special Correspondence to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

BERLIN, Nov. 25. THOUGH fat Hamburg geese will supplant the great American turkey on the tables of practically all Americans in Berlin on Thanksgiving Day, they will find homelike comfort in the spacious embassy where Ambassador and Mrs. Alanson B. Houghton will receive.

Throughout the afternoon Americans will call at 7 Wilhelm Platz and in the grim old building that has little outside indication of the cheer within find a genuine Thanksgiving welcome. Numerous private dinners will take place in American homes and in the larger restaurants. The turkey shortage alone is likely to mar the day, restaurateurs having to scrape help one in all the country surrounding Berlin.

The death of Mrs. Emma Hauberich, formerly of San Antonio, Texas, is announced here.
